THE REEL THING

The actor and director Gary Oldman introduces an eclectic selection of documentaries this month in Discovery Channel's series Filmreal.

Filmreal explores subjects as diverse as apartheid and basketball, which makes 43-year-old Oldman an appropriate choice as presenter, for his background is nothing if not varied, from his ex-wives (actresses Lesley Manville and Uma Thurman, and photographer Donya Fiorentino, whom he met in alcoholic rehabilitation) to the historical characters he has played (Sid Vicious, Lee Harvey Oswald, Ludwig van Beethoven, not to mention Dracula). Indeed, Mel Gibson once said of him: 'He's like Mr Potato Head. He just kind of becomes something else.'

The something else Oldman most wanted to be, in fact, was John Lennon. 'If one could have an alternative life, I would've liked to have been John Lennon,' he says.

'The first film I ever saw at the cinema was A Hard Day's Night. My sister took me. And when I was six or seven I had a plastic guitar with the Beatles' faces on it. It would be a collector's item now.'

Shooting star

The lovely Georgia Zaris, who plays scheming Claudia Irving in Sky One's football soap Dream Team, is in real life an ardent fan of Chelsea FC, and in particular of their slippery Italian striker Gianfranco Zola.

'He's not only a fantastic player,' says Zaris. 'He's cute, too.'

Zaris, 26, grew up in Sydney, Australia, with a father and brother who were both football-mad. Her father is Greek, and Zaris' mother, although as Italian as cute little Zola, quickly learned how to cook Greek food. Zaris still rhapsodises about her mum's Greek cooking.

'She makes yemesta, tomatoes stuffed with rice and peppers and herbs, that are just divine,' she tells me, dreamily. 'My only complaint about living in Chelsea is that it has no decent Greek restaurants.'

Zaris is impressively cosmopolitan. She speaks fluent Greek and decent Japanese, having left Sydney when she was 17 to live in Japan. She then moved to America, and then to Dubai, where she worked for nine months as a flight attendant on the Emirates airline. She had a Muslim boyfriend at the time.

'It was a good lesson in living by the laws of the country you happen to be in,' she says. 'I had to study the Koran, and learn not to serve things with my left hand, which is considered an insult because it is the wiping hand. And when talking to a man and his wife, the custom there is not to address the wife at all, which I found pretty tough.'

Now that she seems to be settled in London, what, I wonder, are her professional ambitions? 'Obviously to get into movies,' she says. 'What I would really like is to appear in a remake of What Ever Happened to Baby Jane? Either in the Bette Davis part or the Joan Crawford part, I'm not fussy. I'm a bit young, but it's incredible what you can do with make-up.'

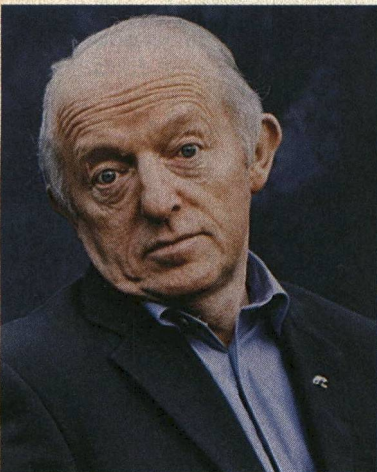

Dream Team, Sky One, Sundays, 8.00pm

Meet the magic man

In When Louis Met Paul and Debbie, Louis Theroux proves himself a cleverer illusionist than Paul Daniels and his wife Debbie McGee, because, while appearing to be friendly and courteous to them throughout, he is gradually skewering them. It is really quite a performance, although he does get plenty of unwitting help from Daniels, whose, er, robust ego has survived the decline of his television career.

Unfortunately, Theroux doesn't examine the Daniels website, which is not only splendidly self-righteous (likes: 'comedy, except where they think swearing is funny'; dislikes: 'turning down charity invitations, but due to the amount of work it leaves little family time'), but also full of shameless hyperbole. 'Paul Daniels is without doubt one of the most accomplished magicians in showbusiness,' it declares. 'Add to that a unique comedy style, and you have the complete entertainer and one of the funniest men in the business. He is acclaimed throughout the world.' By the way, I've seen his show, on a wet October night in Kirkcaldy. I think he's terrific.

A fortunate life

The indefatigable Max Bygraves will be 80 next birthday, but when you're the king of nostalgia, the older you are the better. It just means more anecdotes to crank out. Not that Bygraves – whose stint hosting Family Fortunes is remembered this month on Challenge TV – only has eyes for the past. 'There are some good kids around now,' he tells me. 'Keep your eye on that singer Robbie Williams.'

I assure him that I will, but what I really want are recollections from a showbiz career stretching back into the 1940s. It was not until 1950, however, that he got his big break, appearing at the Palladium on the same bill as Judy Garland, who duly invited him to appear in her show in New York.

'Just to give you some idea of what a break that was, I had just bought a house, in Finchley, North London, for £3200 with a 20-year mortgage. When I came back from America I paid the lot off, in one.'

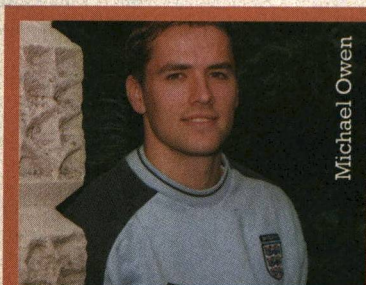

Was Garland the tortured soul we read about now? 'Not at all. Later she got bored, that's all. The best thing she did was marry Sid Luft, who's a great character. He's 87 years old, and still phones me.'

Bygraves, too, is in fine nick for a near-octogenarian, and keen to impress upon me that he still sings Tulips from Amsterdam in the same key that he did 40 years ago. Indeed, he has just released a new CD, Time for One More Singalong Song.

If he no longer looms quite as large in popular culture as he once did, that is partly because his catchphrases have disappeared from impressionists' repertoires. 'Mike Yarwood started it, but others just did his impression of me, saying "I wanna tell you a story", and it got slower and slower. I never talked like that.' He is still, I think, rather offended.

The Forbes factor: Emma returns in Dream Makers

Dream weaver

Remember Emma Forbes? The daughter of film director Bryan Forbes and actress Nanette Newman was once as ubiquitous on TV as, say, Claire Sweeney is now. She then packed it in to devote herself to motherhood, but now that Lily, five, is at school, and three-year-old Sam is at nursery, Forbes is ready to resume her career.

She describes her new show, Dream Makers, as a mixture of Jim'll Fix It and Surprise, in which people are nominated to have their dreams turned into reality. All of which begs the obvious, if cheesy, question, which of her own dreams would she like to come true?

'I would love to sing, live at Wembley, for one night only. But I would need the voice of Kylie. My own singing voice is, erm, not great. Actually, I used to write in endlessly to Jim'll Fix It. I was training to be a ballet dancer at the time and wanted him to fix it for me to dance with Nureyev.'

Surely her parents' connections must have helped to make one or two dreams come true? 'Well, yes. When I was about 11 I was madly in love with Starsky, from Starsky and Hutch, so my father, who had met him somewhere, rang him up and told him that he had a daughter who was completely besotted with him. Anyway, we went to a restaurant in California one night, and this familiar-looking man came over and said, "Excuse me, is this seat taken?" My father had arranged for Starsky, Paul Michael Glaser, to have dinner with us. I nearly died, not least because I was wearing white hair clips and a sailor shirt.'

IN PRODUCTION

Lost world comes to life

A new miniseries featuring talking dinosaurs is hailed as a TV landmark. Words: Kylie Northover

Think dinosaurs and you're likely to picture a marauding T-Rex bearing down on its prey – but a new miniseries is set to blow away the popular image of dinosaurs as terrifying monsters.

In what promises to be a landmark television event, Dinotopia, based on the hugely successful children's book written and illustrated by James Gurney, will screen next year as a six-part miniseries on Sky One.

The adaptation of Dinotopia is the most expensive TV production – with a budget of $80m – and the most technically complex series in the history of American television.

The programme tells the story of two brothers, whose plane crashes en route to the Caribbean for a holiday. They are washed up on the shores of a lost continent, Dinotopia, where, cut off from the rest of the world, humans and dinosaurs live side by side as equals. The dinosaurs have their own alphabet and can read and write. Some provide public transport and toil the land, while others work as academics and attend university.

Using life-sized robots created by the Jim Henson Workshop and state-of-the-art computer animation, Dinotopia aims to be unlike anything we've

According to the programme's visual effects supervisor, FrameStore's Mike McGee, Dinotopia will be 'much more technically sophisticated than Walking with Dinosaurs'.

'Digital technology has advanced in the two years since that was filmed,' he says. 'There are 336 scenes in the film; 258 of them have visual effects. Those are staggering numbers and it's a staggering challenge. I hope that the audience will be able to accept the dinosaurs as natural parts of the landscape – there'll be humans and there'll be dinosaurs, and it should all look organic and natural.'

However, Jon Bon Jovi and X-Men star James Marsden (left) are joining the cast and Mariah Carey is set to guest. Other appearances will include Elton John, Dame Edna Everage and Jacqueline Bisset. MAD ABOUT THE TOYS

It was always going to be tough following up the family favourite Toy Story, but the movie's creators rose to the challenge and the result was that rare thing – a sequel that actually improves upon the original. Words: Tina Ogle

How on earth do you make a successful sequel to a movie that thrilled critics and wowed children and adults alike? This was the thorny question facing the creators of Toy Story, the animated hit that made universally loved figures out of Buzz Lightyear and Woody the cowboy.

For director John Lasseter, it was a question of good old-fashioned storytelling. Never mind the state-of-the-art animation techniques, it had to be another well-told adventure: 'We didn't want to retell the same story with the same people. We wanted to create a new adventure that would be equal to the first. For me it's the story that holds the audience, not the technology and not the look of the film.'

He first hatched the idea for Toy Story 2 while disciplining some of his own sons. Co-director Lee Unkrich explains: 'John has a lot of really valuable toys in his office.'

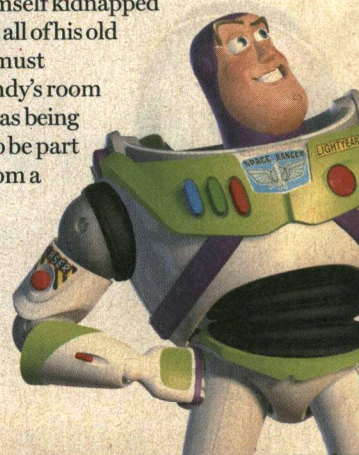

His boys were in one day and they started playing with these collectable toys and John said, "No, don't touch those, you'll break them". Then he realised the hypocrisy of what he was saying.

How would the toys feel about this? They were brought into the world to be played with by children and here they're being kept on a shelf?

And so Woody finds himself kidnapped by an evil toy collector and all of his old pals, and some new ones, must venture beyond owner Andy's room to rescue him. For as well as being lovable, Woody turns out to be part of a valuable set of toys from a 1950s TV series.

Strangely, Toy Story 2 was originally planned as a straight-to-video release. But once stars Tom Hanks, Tim Allen and the rest of the original action. 'We want our story to work just as well if we were to go out and film it with actors. I don't think it's any harder or any easier.'

A big development in the sequel is the new character of Jessie, Woody's freshly discovered partner from his Wild West world voiced by Joan Cusack. She was created out of a conscious need to make Toy Story 2 less male-dominated. 'We knew we had been very boy-centric, probably because it was a bunch of guys making it. We're proud of Jessie because she's our very first fully rounded female - we hope she's real and believable.'

Another feminine addition is a bunch of partying Barbies who give rise to probably the funniest sequence in the film. Barbie was originally slated to play an important part in the first movie but her makers weren't keen. Unsurprisingly, they were happy to sign her up for the sequel.

But were the creators cruel in their casting? Unkrich laughs: 'I don't think we were mean. We just took the personality you would expect a Barbie doll to have and turned it up to 11.'

There are currently no plans for a Toy Story 3, but the idea hasn't been ruled out. When you consider that it takes around three years to put together one of these films using the skills of up to 60 animators, you wonder how enthusiasm can be maintained.

But for Unkrich and the rest of his team, it really is a labour of love. 'As soon as we started kicking around ideas for the sequel, we realised that we really loved these characters, that they were like a family. We feel there's still a lot of life left in them yet.'

So who is his favourite, then, Buzz or Woody? 'Oh no, you can't ask me that. It would be like asking me to choose which of my own daughters I like the best. I just can't do it.'

voice talent had been signed up, it was decided to turn it into a full-scale theatrical movie. Generally considered to be as good as, if not better than the original, the creators succeeded in their aim of giving the film and its characters more depth.

Says Unkrich: 'There's a richness to the characters that was only hinted at in the first film. We've spent a lot of time plumbing the depths of a toy's psyche. The film taps into a lot of themes and a lot of primal human emotions - being afraid of growing up and getting older, being afraid of your kids moving away from home. These feelings are really universal and people of all different ages can relate to them.'

If all this sounds a bit highfalutin when applied to what are essentially plastic figures, then you probably haven't already seen the film.

It's bizarre, but undeniably true, that you quickly forget that these are computer-animated toys and not flesh and blood.

For Unkrich, there is no difference between writing a script for animation and one for live

VOCAL HERO

Former Cheers star John Ratzenberger supplies his vocal talents to Toy Story 2. Tina Ogle asked him to speak up

How would you describe your character Hamm in Toy Story 2?

He's cute and pink, just like me. The only difference is he has a slot in his back and he's carrying over $6 in change.

Did you mind being cast as a pig?

I was flattered to be a pig. They didn't have any donkeys. The pig is the most intelligent animal after man, we all know that, right?

Do you think he's a bit similar to your famous character of Cliff in Cheers?

I think all the characters I play are quite similar to Cliff in Cheers. I'm a bit like John Wayne - he always played the same character. It was that voice they were going for.

Other than Hamm, who is your favourite character in the film?

It's got to be Wheezy, the penguin who's lost his squeak. He's so cute and funny.

What was your favourite toy as a child?

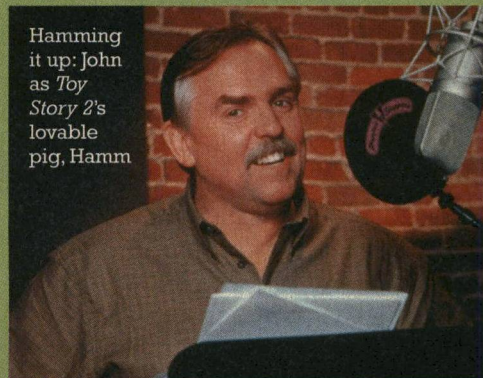

It was a cardboard box that one of the neighbours had left out. I cut holes in it and it became a number of things. I don't think my kids would be very impressed if I tried to give them one of those today though.

Which do you find easier, live action acting or doing voices for animation?

I find it much easier to do voice acting because I can show up in my pyjamas if I want to. They're silk and they're very nice.

Hamming it up: John as Toy Story 2's lovable pig, Hamm

Are there any bits that didn't make it into the film that you're sad about?

There's a great out-take scene where Hamm is chatting up the Barbie dolls and he thinks they're rubbing suntan lotion into him. But then he says, 'Hey! What's that smell? That's barbecue sauce!'

UK Style presenters Paul Roseby and Katrina Buchanan are in the mood to spread plenty of Christmas cheer this month, writes Jane Oddy entertaining celebrity guests: 'Live work is the best because you really have to be on the ball. With all these European links, something, somewhere is bound to go wrong, which will make great TV.'

'Each day will be themed to the country Katrina is in. We'll have celebrity chefs coming in to rustle up gorgeous food from that region and also some interior decorators like Linda Barker coming in to make things - it's going to be a bit like Blue Peter for adults.'

By logging onto the website, www.ukstyle.tv, viewers will also have the chance to chat live to Paul, Katrina and their celebrity guests, send special Christmas e-cards to friends and enter competitions with some fantastic prizes.

While chaos reigns supreme in Leeds, Paul will be linked live to Katrina from a different destination every day. 'I'll be dipping into the culture of each city, sampling the food and their Christmas traditions,' she says.

The show gives her a glorious excuse to hit the shops as she gives a guide to the best places to spend money and buy traditional gifts, and she also explores the best local restaurants and food emporiums: 'I'm also going to visit a local family and see how they celebrate. I can't think of anything better. I'm one of those people who can't resist peeking into someone's front room if they've left their curtains open.'

Katrina is grateful the broadcasts end just before Christmas so she can go back to her parents' place in Hanwell, west London, and put her feet up: 'I've never spent a Christmas Day away from my family. It's open house and we eat, drink and talk a lot. It's not cosy Waltons, but quite boozy!'

Paul, who also presents UK Style's Weekend Away and Style Street, says: 'I wouldn't mind having to present Christmas Live on Christmas Day actually - it would solve that problem of what I'm going to do. There are always so many options and I can never decide. At the moment, it looks like I could be at a friend's 40th birthday in Morocco, but that could change.'

When it comes to his favourite Christmas experience, Paul describes the time he went to an old manor house in Cornwall: 'There was no TV in the house, so it was party games all the time and log fires and long country walks and taking turns to cook. That was probably my perfect Christmas.' CG

PAUL ROSEBY, UK STYLE'S flamboyant presenter, has no fear of live broadcasting, but he warns bosses at the network to expect a few surprises as the festive season unfolds.

As he prepares to co-host a series of pre-Christmas live shows for UK Style, he reveals that the last time he hosted a live seasonal special, for Channel 5, he was so over-the-top that the controller tried to get him off air.

'I'll admit I was being a little bit naughty. The controller rang up the gallery during one of the commercial breaks and said: "Is this wise? Can't we get a replacement for him?" I think the controller of UK Style is a bit nervous, too, and I hope I still have a job after Christmas.'

His co-star, Katrina Buchanan, will be the roving European reporter for Christmas Live and agrees it is probably best that the pair are separated during the five daily broadcasts: 'We're both gigglers and we reckon they don't trust us together in the studio, so they've put miles between us - and they're probably right,' she grins.

The UK Style live Christmas shows will air from five different, but equally glamorous, European cities: Paris, Barcelona, Vienna, Prague and Lillhammer.

During the five programmes, Paul will be based in Leeds, keeping the Christmas spirit ticking over, while

With an Oscar and a huge list of hit records to his name, Elton John ranks among the biggest names in pop. And now he has turned his talents to film production. Interview: Garth Pearce

Elton John's interest in films was stirred by boyhood mornings spent at local cinemas, watching 1950s cowboy action with Roy Rodgers and Hopalong Cassidy in the saddle. But, when he came to make a movie himself, he thought that he'd shot himself in the foot.

'Nothing and no one could have prepared me for how long it took,' he says. 'I write songs quickly and find it frustrating enough to make an album and wait for up to a year for it to come out. But the film business is like no other, in that there is frustration at every turn.'

Elton, 54, has set up a new company, Rocket Pictures, to launch Women Talking Dirty, starring Helena Bonham Carter and Gina McKee, which is released at cinemas this month after three years of effort. 'I think we've made a sweet and fab first movie,' he declares, before admitting, 'but it has been hell getting it out.'

'It has not put me off. I have treated it as a learning curve and we now have three or four new films in development. People have asked, "Why bother getting involved in movies? They're too much of a headache." If I thought like that, I would have never done anything.'

involved in films since, whether winning an Oscar for writing the music to The Lion King or hosting his legendary Hollywood post-Oscar parties.

'I remember one year sitting in a booth at my party with Nicolas Cage, who had won an Oscar, Tom Hanks, Bruce Springsteen and the artist formerly known as Prince. Everyone was more fascinated with Prince than any of the film stars that night. He is very, very shy. On some nights, he's delightful and full of life. On others, he can be very shy and completely withdrawn. But I am still a fan when it comes to meeting people.'

Elton's fan-worship is a surprise. He was seen on a television documentary, Tantrums & Tiaras, buying new CDs by the score from a music store.

'I still do it,' he says. 'And the thrill in meeting the famous has not been lost. Kevin Spacey came to my ball at the house in Windsor this year and that was great. I had only met him briefly at a film festival and was very nervous before talking to him. I respect him for his talent and he's such a great actor. Fortunately, we got on like a house on fire. But I am shy when it comes to these events.'

We meet at Elton's London home, where he keeps signatures of the four people he's ever asked for autographs: Elvis Presley, Mae West, Josephine Baker and Groucho Marx. For a man whose earlier unhappy personal life is a matter of record – the loneliness of his self-confessed homosexuality, his binge drinking and drug-taking – he is relaxed and full of energy.

'I was terrible when taking drugs,' he reflects. 'If there was somebody bad to be attracted to, then I would be attracted to them. But, sober, I have got pretty good instincts and I've been able to go back to them.'

His partner, David Furnish, who acts as a producer of his new film, is one reason for new-found happiness. A rediscovery of a great enthusiasm for life itself is another.

'I just love what I do and love being in the position, at my age, to phone up people like Victoria Beckham and say, "Listen, I will help you do this or that".'

'I have a lot of time for both Victoria and David Beckham and they have been very sweet to David and myself. I try and help people like this. They are young and I don't want to see them hurt, because fame sometimes carries with it a terrible price.'

Elton is in the album charts again with his latest offering, Songs from the West Coast ('It was back to basics and the best thing I've done in 25 years') and, coupled with his new film company, his future is looking rosy.

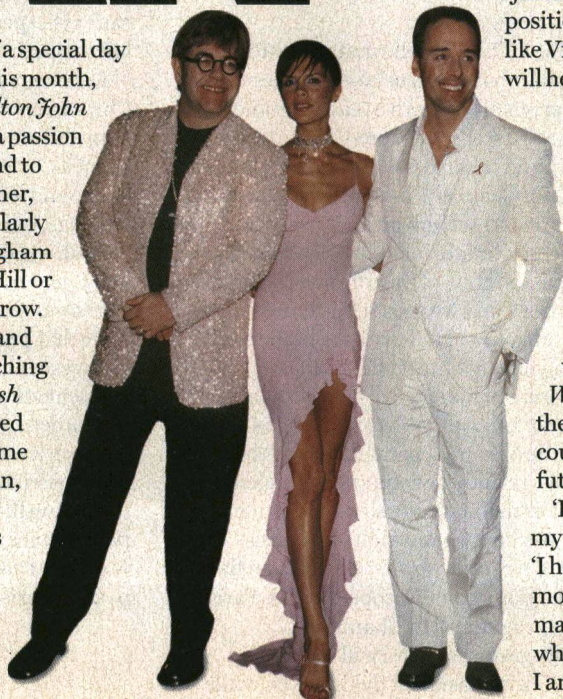

'I decided that I did not want to put my feet up for the rest of my life,' he says. 'I have a huge hunger for books, CDs, movies and the talent that goes in to making them. Despite my lifestyle, which I recognise as pretty lavish, I am still the consummate fan.'

RENAISSANCE MAN

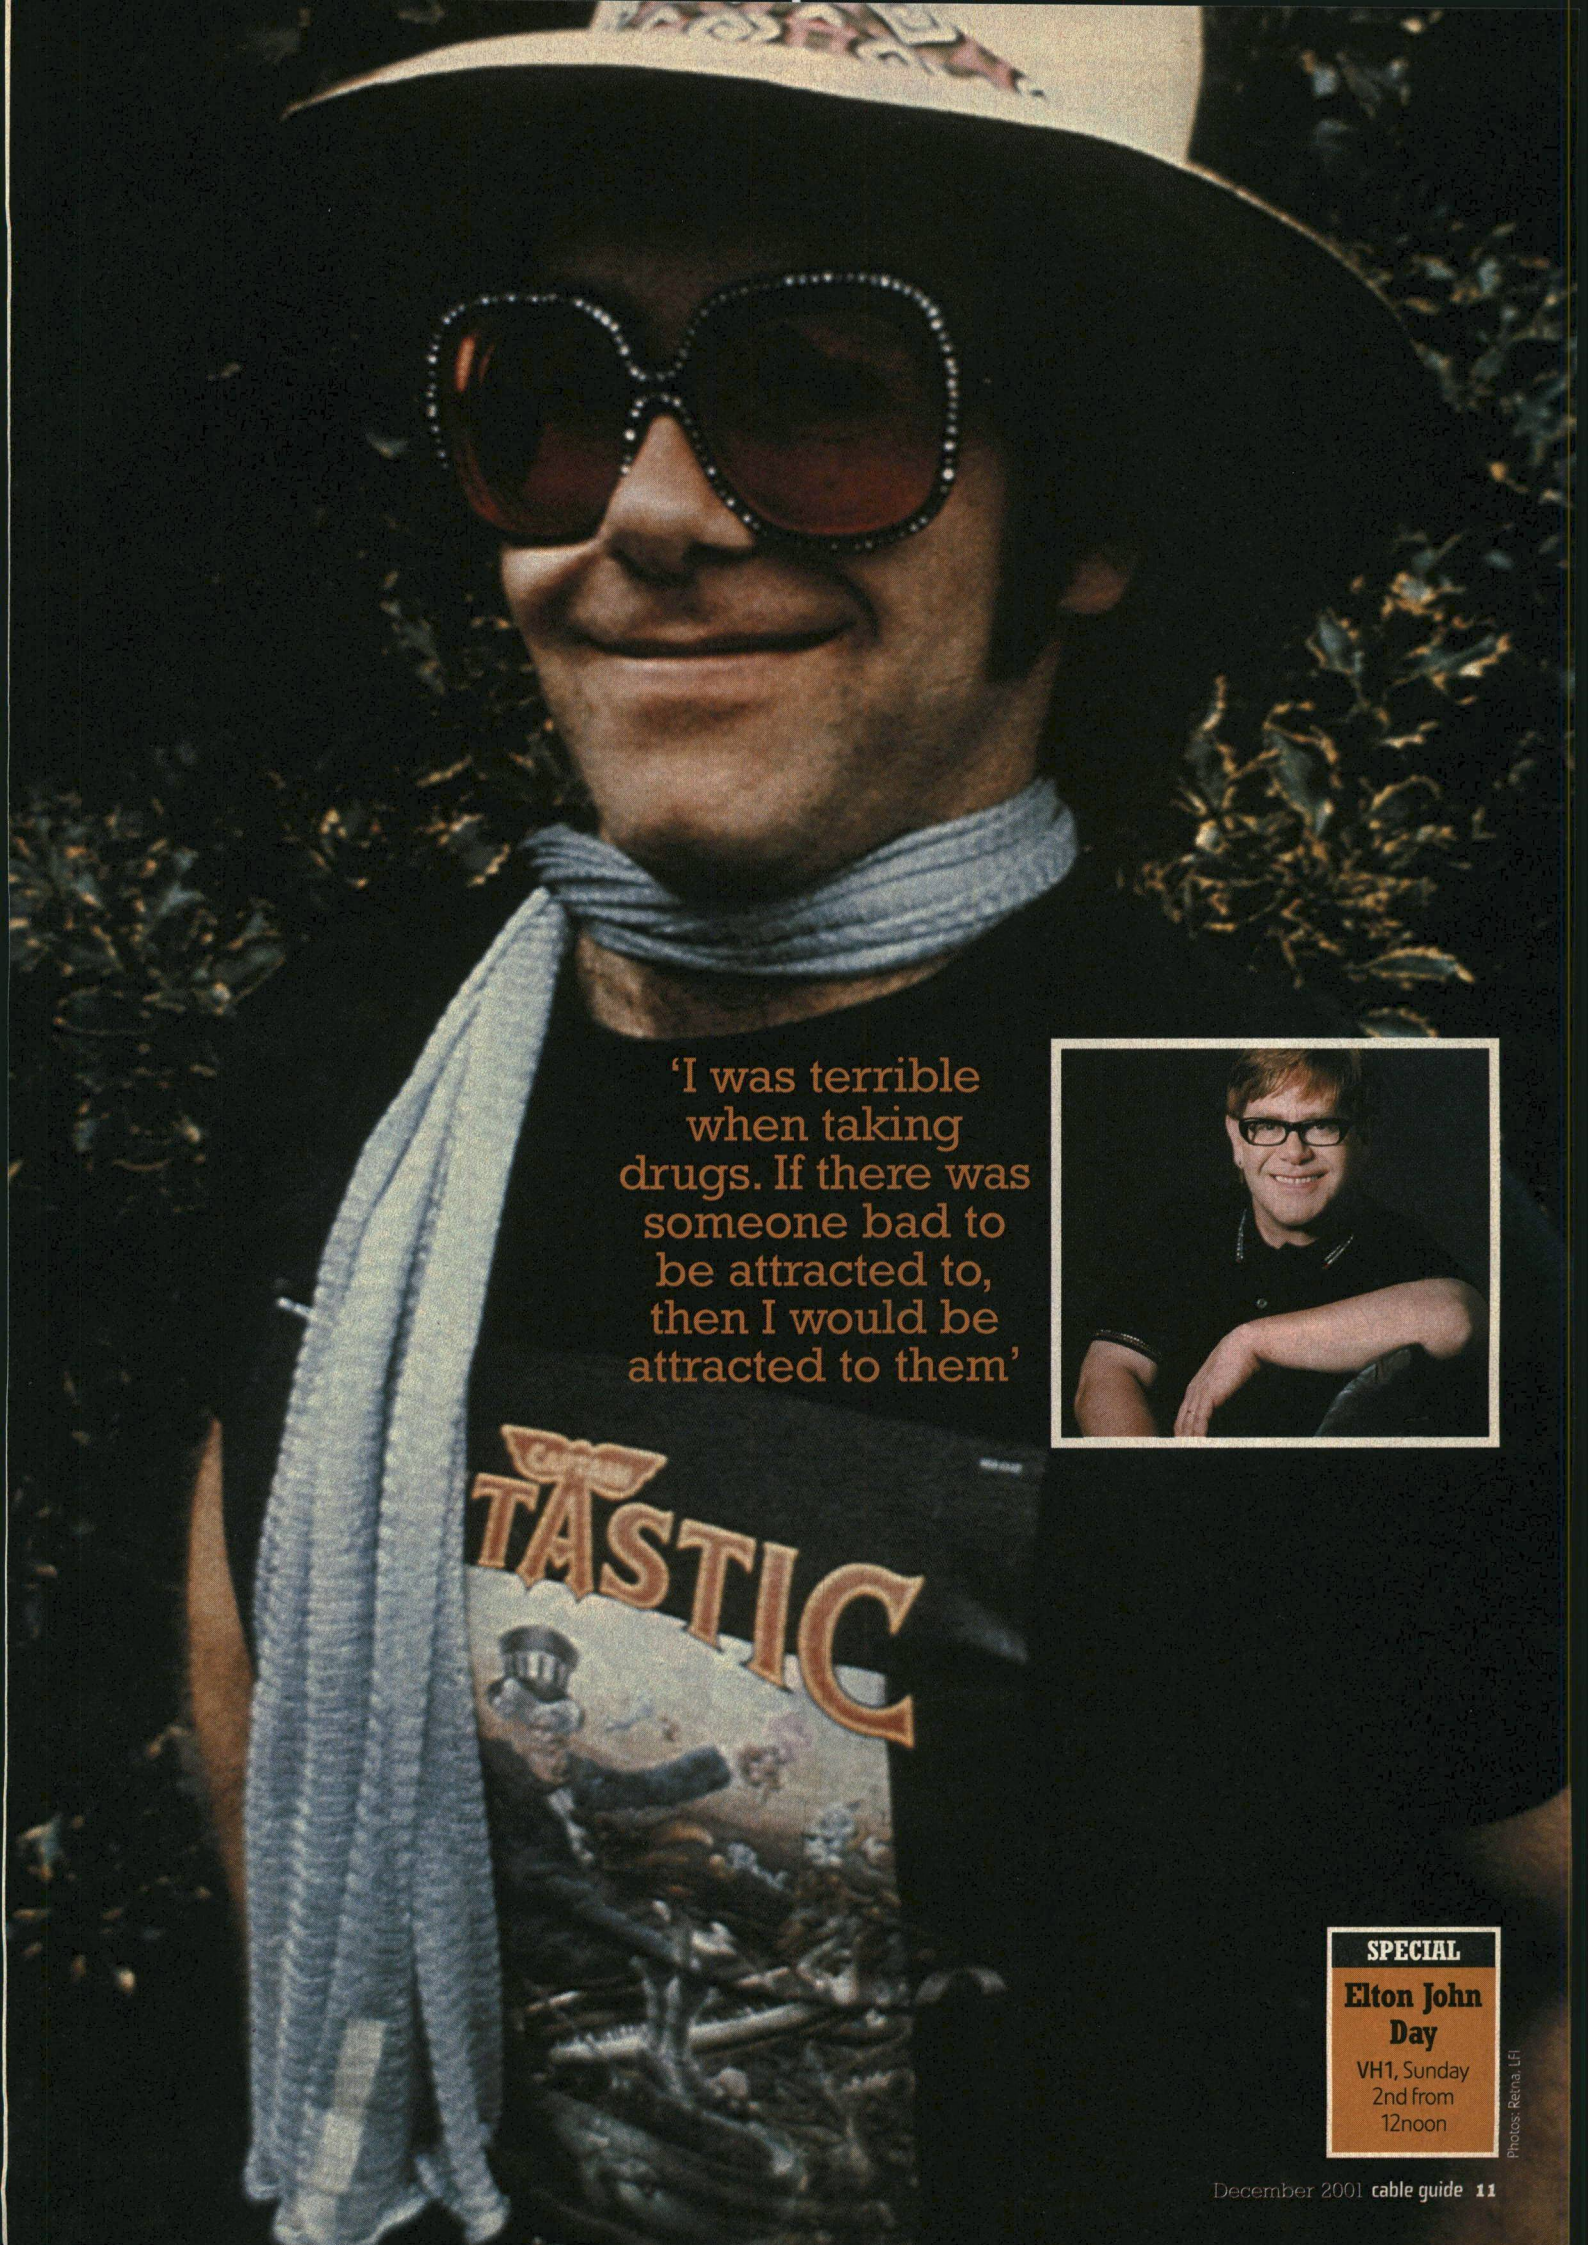

And Elton, the subject of a special day of programming on VH1 this month, including the premiere of Elton John Reveals, fondly recalls how a passion began that ran a close second to his music. 'I grew up in Pinner, Middlesex, and would regularly go to cinemas like The Langham or The Rex in Northwood Hill or The Embassy in North Harrow.'

'It was sixpence to get in and we would sit entranced watching cowboys and series like Flash Gordon. Then, when I started writing music with [longtime collaborator] Bernie Taupin, we would have afternoons off going to see Peter Sellers films. We used to go and see anything from Doctor Zhivago to Carry On films. I was hooked.'

HAVE A MIRTHFUL CHRISTMAS

If the stresses and strains of the season have left you feeling Christmas crackered, these comedy specials are sure to restore your festive spirit

Al-star comedy

Words: Kylie Northover

IT'S THE SEASON TO be jolly, but at Al Murray, The Pub Landlord's gaff, you can be sure the Christmas cheer will be strictly monitored.

Comedian Al Murray, who first made his now-famous character The Pub Landlord a household name on the stand-up comedy circuit, returns for Christmas with a brand new series of Time Gentlemen Please on Boxing Day.

He may not have stocked any of those fancy pre-mixed vodka drinks yet, but there is a new face behind the bar. Replacing Julia Sawalha as the foxy new barmaid in this series is Emma Pierson, best known for her role in the TV series Beast.

As well as all the pub's regulars dropping by for a festive tippie, including the down-and-out Terry (Phil Daniels) and Ms Jackson, the Brewery Area Manager (Rebecca Front), the Christmas special will also feature a host of surprise celebrity cameos dropping by the traditional British pub.

In between the locals, the guests and the steady flow of 'pints for the fella, white wine or fruit-based drink for the lady', Al treats viewers to his view of the season of good cheer.

'It's been great fun, and really interesting in terms of doing a TV show and working with other actors,' Al says of his television debut.

'If you've only done stand-up on your own it's a bit of a cultural shift – all of a sudden you're interacting with people, and you have to be keenly aware of working as a team. It was very different for me though – you've filmed your stuff, but then it's not over; I found myself in the editing suite a lot, thinking, "What am I doing in here? I just tell jokes!" I do enjoy the spontaneous side of stand-up a lot, but this was fun, and I think The Pub Landlord translates OK onto the telly.

'Everyone's been in a taxi or a bar where the driver or barman has just talked at them and spouted opinions on anything and everything,' Al says. 'I think that's why The Pub Landlord has been so popular.' And what can we expect from the Christmas special and the new series to follow in the New Year?

'It'll be the usual stuff with more philosophical musings on the state of the world today,' he says. 'You know, how anything with a Germanic name sounds a bit sus, lots of bits and pieces about current affairs, that sort of thing...'

Words: Tara Nathanson

I THINK HE MEANS well but he's got an insufferable attitude because he believes he's better than he is,' says John Challis of his Only Fools and Horses (OFAH) character, the unspeakably pompous Boycie.

It's a surprisingly sympathetic view of the second-hand car dealer. But, considering the success Boycie has brought John, a role he has played ever since appearing in the third episode in 1981, it would be difficult for John to resent him.

'You can't just hate these characters and carry on playing them', John explains. 'You've got to have sympathy for where they come from.'

Looking back on the early days, he says: 'I just remember reading the script and laughing out loud ... but I had no idea it would get to where it finished up because it was quite a slow starter.'

A slow starter it may have been, but 63 episodes and specials, seven series and three BAFTAs later, some 23 million viewers tuned in to watch Del and Rodney make their 'meillions' in the last of the Christmas trilogy in 1996.

'That whole special, with the dream sequence and everything, I just think was brilliant,' he says. In fact, it's one of his favourites, not least because of the sentimental attachment. 'We got a standing ovation in the studio ... It was like the end of an era, but it never really hit home at the time.'

This month, OFAH is back on UK Gold with five specials, as well as on terrestrial TV in the shape of a brand new three-part special.

At the time of writing, the rehearsals hadn't begun, but John anticipated that it would be strange for the cast to be back together after five years, particularly because two had died – Buster Merryfield (Uncle Albert) in 1999 and Kenneth MacDonald (Mike) in August.

'Ken used to always say, "We'll be back", and now of course we are back and he's not with us. It's such a bizarre life isn't it? They were both lovely characters and we'll miss them very much.'

Despite those sad losses, John doesn't expect the quality of OFAH to be affected. 'The whole thing is bigger than anybody else in it. It's just an institution now.'

That said, he isn't sure he'd like to see the series return for good. 'It was such an Eighties series and the essence of it is Del and his deals, and the people he comes up against to get to where he wants to be, and I just think we're a bit past it really,' he says, laughing.

'It's an old cliché but I think quitting at the top is essential. So, I think this should be it. Mind you, I said that last time, so who knows what will happen?'

Remember, John – he who dares, wins.

They could so easily have been a one-hit wonder, but Steps have proved themselves indelible pop favourites. As Beth Mansfield discovers, there seems to be no stopping them

MANY AN INDIVIDUAL HAS found salvation in line-dancing but few people have built a chart-topping career from it. However, four years ago, Claire Richards, Faye Tozer, Ian Watkins, Lisa Scott-Lee and Lee Latchford-Evans answered an advertisement in The Stage newspaper seeking talent to form a new band. They were chosen from thousands of pop-star wannabes and soon found themselves doing the step-shuffle-clap on Top of the Pops. Their first release, 5-6-7-8, stayed in the UK top 40 for three months in 1997, sold more than 290,000 copies and became a big hit all over the world.

Along with their high-quality Europop, Steps are renowned for their ambitious hairdos, syncopated dance routines and unshakable enthusiasm. They have enjoyed a succession of top 10 hits (including two number ones) and all three of their studio albums have gone top five.

But to settle back and bask in past pop glory is not the Steps way. 'You do get days when you feel a bit like crawling back to bed and not coming out,' admits Claire, 'but everyone gets those, famous or not.'

There's been little opportunity for any of the Steps quintet to hide under the duvet so far. 'We've been writing songs to go on the Greatest Hits album – some may be saved until the next album which will be out next year. We've also played some outdoor pop festivals and we've been promoting the single [Chain Reaction],' says Claire.

The Steps Gold Tour kicked off last month and the group say they couldn't wait to strut to their own particular favourites. 'I like performing One for Sorrow, but Tragedy is a definite favourite, too,' says Claire. Their version of the Bee Gees' floor-filler Tragedy, released in November 1998, hung about in the top 10 for eight weeks, before giving Steps their first number one the following January. 'I always enjoy performing Tragedy too,' admits resident live-wire H, 'but when we're live I also like doing the ones that I sing solo.'

The band are looking forward to seeing the fans and singing live on stage again. 'You can be sure a few daft things will happen on tour,' says Claire. And daft things do happen with H – for hyperactivity – around.

Steps can be proud of an amazing tour record already under their belts. Their record-breaking tour of the UK in 1999 saw them play live to a total audience of over 350,000 people, as well as selling over 1.8 million albums in the UK alone. So impressive was their success that year that the group were presented with a special achievement award at last year's Brits. Without a doubt, a Steptacular accomplishment!

And when they're not recording or touring, you can catch Steps on TV as they try their hands at presenting. Fans can expect to see a lot more of pop's hardest-working band on their television screens. Talking of which, why not make a date with them this month by tuning into Sky Box Office? Steps are sure to be at their breathtaking best.

Air play

Donna Air dolls up, quite literally, for her latest show, Donnaworld, in which she interviews anyone whose anyone – as long as they're a real doll too. Interview: Imelda Labon

IT MAY BE WRAPPED in sugary pink opening credits, complete with kittenish, child-like singing that pays homage to Stanley Kubrick's controversial movie Lolita, but Donna Air's new series isn't all it seems. According to the 22-year-old ex-Big Breakfast presenter, its sharp observations are keeping the show's libel lawyers permanently on their toes. 'I think it's a bit dangerous for terrestrial television,' says Air. 'I don't think anybody there would dare be brave enough to put it on.'

The unusual 12-minute show, Donnaworld, which begins on Play this month, is set in a doll's house belonging to Donna (in doll form, which is voiced by Air), a self-obsessed Barbie-like blonde, who deigns to interview major A-list celebrities (also dolls), only to kill them at the end of each interview. 'Guests' lined up to appear opposite this narcissistic, bitchy madam include Britney Spears, Bill Clinton and Posh Spice, or as Air puts it, 'the usual suspects'.

'It's very dark and a bit surreal, but dirty and funny, too,' says Air. 'And sometimes there's a bit of truth in there, which is what really hits a nerve. But it's whatever everybody's thinking but nobody has the guts to say. I mean, there are so many girls out there who would just love to drown Britney.'

As well as its irreverent format, viewers may be surprised by Donna doll's laid-back style, which is a departure from the bubbly, smiley Air that we're used to, but which, says the TV presenter, is much closer to the real her.

'I started off by overacting – caricaturing my voice and making it light and airheady, because I wanted to play up to the image people have of me,' explains Air. 'But the director asked me to tone it down a bit. In the end, the character as you see her in the show is more like the real me – quite serious and dry.'

Made by Air's own production company, Airhead & Money, Donnaworld gives the budding actress the chance to showcase and develop her thespian skills, which is where her ambitions ultimately lie. The green-eyed lads' mag regular is also enjoying the fact that she can 'roll up to work in jumper, jeans and no make-up' to voice her doll character.

In contrast, a massive amount of thought has gone into the appearance of the doll's house. Inspired by Posh and Becks' home, Donnaworld is decorated with several portraits of Air. There's even a garden water-feature, which incorporates a statue of her. In fact, says Air 'it makes Beckingham Palace look tasteful'. And although she claims this is all a million miles away from her own 'tastefully decorated' pad in Knightsbridge, which is testament to her love of period style, she has noticed certain things creeping into Donna doll's house that are really making her worry.

'My business partner, Francis [Ridley], is involved in the set design and he does ridicule me quite often,' she explains. 'I was looking at these Warhols the other day, and suddenly more Warhols appeared in Donnaworld. Maybe it's more me than I think, which is a bit frightening...' cg

Vicki Butler-Henderson

Some auto enthusiasts spend fortunes on customising perfectly good cars. But wouldn't it be cheaper to buy a flashier model in the first place?

NOW SHOWING

Catch Vicki Butler-Henderson in Top Bikes, and Top Gear GTi, UK Horizons, see listings for details

I HAVE HAD THE PLEASURE of talking to many car designers over the years, and no matter which manufacturer they work for, they all share one thing – a passion for what they do. And it must be the most amazing feeling to see your finished product gracing the road, knowing that it was you who decided how it should look.

Naturally, the job of the car dictates its design to a large degree – for example, you wouldn't put a Ferrari body onto something that needs to carry eight people. Unfortunately.

But no matter what the car looks like, one thing's for sure – its designer was happy enough with his finished design to give the go-ahead for it to be made.

So why do some of us think we know better, adding all sorts of extras to our motors?

Customising is a big business. Some people won't think twice about spending thousands of pounds buying bigger alloys, fatter tyres, whopping great spoilers and painting the car a completely different colour. Some go so far down this road that it makes you wonder why they didn't buy a car they really wanted in the first place. If a car really needed a spoiler, for the sake of aerodynamics, then the designer would have given it one.

To see a diesel-powered Ford Fiesta rocking down the high street with a rear wing the size of Concorde's is humorous, but utterly unnecessary.

I can't argue with the fact that people want to inject some of their own personality into their car. We do exactly the same thing when we move house, after all.

And, I must confess, I've customised my motorbike to some extent, by ditching the standard exhaust pipes and popping on a pair of Remus ones. Why did I do it? To make it a bit different. To put my own mark on it. And because it now sounds truly superb!

Lots of money is spent on the inside of cars, too. I know of a chap who bought a great car – a BMW X5 – and then spent £80,000 (yes, really, 80 grand) on brand new seats, a stereo system, DVD player and television sets.

The car cost about £40,000 new, and I'm sure its designer thought it perfectly sound to start with. More money than sense there, I reckon.

Now, I do have a weakness for cars with spoilers and a decent stereo, and there is a car that suits my needs and requires no customising at all. The Mitsubishi Evo VI. Job done.

Courting custom: the Vauxhall Corsa, above, as the designer intended, and how the customising buff might transform it, below

ENTERPRISING ACTION TO COME

I recently watched the new series of Star Trek: Enterprise, parts one and two, from the internet. There was a 'new age' (like Worf) Klingon on it, with all those lumps and things on his head, but in the old series of Star Trek with Kirk you will notice they look very similar to humans, without the lumps on their heads. This could be a fault – apparently the series Enterprise is based around time distortion. If you could please shed some light on this I would appreciate it. I must say I was very impressed by it. This could possibly be the greatest Star Trek series ever.
Lee Paget, e-mail

We hear that Enterprise has gone down well Stateside, Lee, particularly the character of Vulcan Sub Commander TP01, played by 26-year-old model-turned-actress Jolene Blalock. And – this is a first for Star Trek – a dog (a Beagle called Porthos) is also tagging along for the ride! As for the different look of the Klingons, executive producer Rick Berman has stated that the new appearance of the Klingons is something that developed shortly after the move from the original TV series to the movies, and it is the new Klingon features that they will be using in Enterprise, starting on Sky One next month.

COUNTRY CASUALS

Is there any chance that there will ever be any country music shown on The Box, VH1 or MTV? I am sure that I ask this question for many country music fans.
Mr L Pike, Wigan

A VH1 and MTV spokesperson replies: 'We do not believe in compartmentalising the audience by genre. We prefer to accommodate as many musical tastes as possible throughout our music programming while continuing to support established country cross-over artists such as Faith Hill, Shania Twain and LeAnn Rimes, as well as up and coming stars including Ryan Adams.'

A Box spokesperson replies: 'We look at all music videos that come in each week and over the past couple of months we've had the likes of Faith Hill and LeAnn Rimes generating loads of calls. In fact, Lonestar have been one of the most requested acts on The Box recently with I'm Already There, which we supported for almost two months prior to release! We hope that it shows that if the song feels right we'll happily support all forms of music.'

ONCE UPON A TIME ...

Why does UK Gold insist on cutting (not editing) certain sitcoms, such as The Young Ones and Blackadder?

In September, Blackadder was shown with 40-minute time slots allocated, which meant that, after adverts and trailers, around four minutes was cut from each episode. As a result, some of the subsequent dialogue made little or no sense.

I was, therefore, pleased to see that for the October Saturday Night Stack showing, the time allocated had been increased to 45 minutes per episode. I assumed this was to ensure they would be shown in their full 35-minute episodes. How naive. What we actually got was an extra five minutes of adverts and trailers.

If UK Gold can't show programmes as originally screened, why bother at all? After all, they couldn't have been cut for sex and violence, could they?

Mr A P Brombley, Hampshire

A UK Gold spokesperson responds:

'The Blackadder series was shown throughout August, unedited. The same tapes were used for the October transmission of series one. The only difference was that there was a change in the level of advertising in each month. This led to a 40-minute slot in August and a 45-minute slot for some episodes in the October stack.'

GOODBYE, GUYS AND GIRL

I read in Cable Guide that Two Guys and a Girl, on Trouble, had been cancelled in America. I couldn't believe it, it was by far the best show on Trouble. I was wondering why they cancelled such a superb show?
Rachel Joyce, e-mail

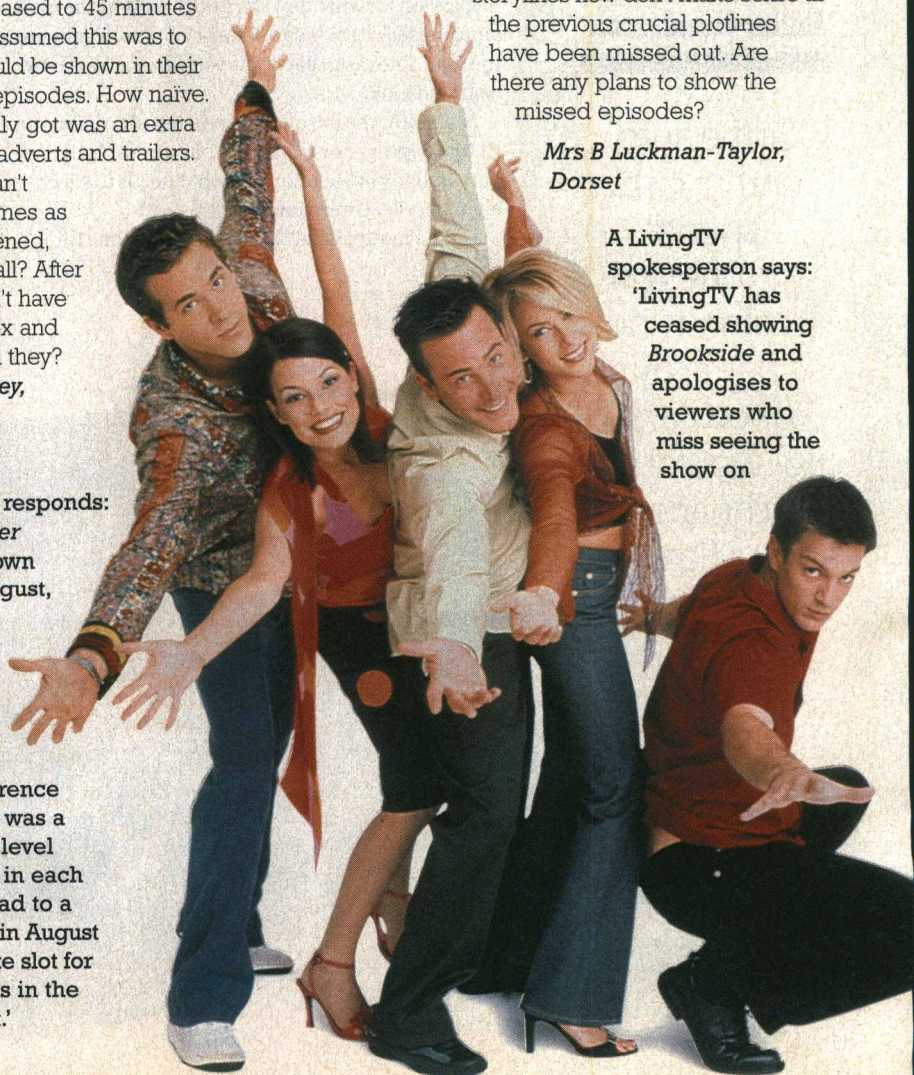

Two Guys and a Girl was not renewed for a fifth series by ABC, and it looks as if poor ratings were to blame, Rachel.

BROOKSIDE CHANGES SIDES

I am a fan of Brookside and have been catching up on all of the old episodes on LivingTV. Imagine my dismay when LivingTV recently ceased showing them. Then dismay turned to joy when I saw that they would continue to be shown on Sky One. But when I tuned in, the episodes had jumped forward by months, which means that the storylines now don't make sense as the previous crucial plotlines have been missed out. Are there any plans to show the missed episodes?

Mrs B Luckman-Taylor, Dorset

A LivingTV spokesperson says: 'LivingTV has ceased showing Brookside and apologises to viewers who miss seeing the show on

LETTER OF THE MONTH

Fishing for news

As a keen fly fisherman I find A River Somewhere (on Discovery Channel and Travel Channel) full of good ideas on where I can fish in Europe, as well as the rest of the world. Do you know if this series will be shown again soon? If not, is it available on video?
Dale Green, e-mail

Well done, Dale, you've won £50! A Discovery Channel spokesperson replies: 'A River Somewhere was last shown on Discovery Home & Leisure in September and there are no immediate plans to repeat this series. However, it will be repeated next year. On Discovery Home & Leisure in December we have the fantastic Coast to Coast (with Darryl Grimason, pictured above), fishing on the inland waterways of Ireland. And, in the New Year, keep an eye open for Reels Wars, a survival series where two men disappear into the wilds and must battle to stay alive by fishing alone!'

Travel Channel tells us that you can write to the distributor of A River Somewhere to request a copy. The address is: Adler Media Inc, 6849 Old Dominion Drive, Suite 360, McLean, Virginia 22101, USA.

the channel. LivingTV has no plans to show Brookside in the future, but we hope to have a new soap on the channel in the New Year, and will confirm details on our website, www.livingtv.co.uk, soon.' Sky One has no current plans to show the missing episodes.

BILLY ELLIOT'S NOT FOR ME

Billy Elliot is another example of a highly hyped-up film that in reality turns out to be a big disappointment. It takes more than a short pair of trousers to have audiences believing that Jamie Bell is an 11-year-old child. It is too obvious that he is much older.

My children used to go to dancing lessons and I never knew a dance teacher as portrayed by Julie Walters, who looks more like a chain-smoking bag lady.

I also resent the way in which working-class people are portrayed as people who speak as if their brain hurts and have an affinity with the 'F' word. I don't know what it is about modern film producers; they think a film isn't watchable unless it's unsavoury. What could have been a lovely story is spoiled.

Barbara Dunn, Birmingham

ANY GIVEN BUNDY

Please could someone tell me when Married... With Children is set to be on Sky One again? I would like to see the antics of the Bundy family again.

Dominic Smith, Surrey

Hopefully, you've spotted Married... With Children on Paramount Comedy Channel, Dominic. It's been showing since October and series six continues this month.

ANTICS REPLAY

I love MTV's Jackass - I think it's one of the most outrageous shows on TV. Over the last few weeks, however, MTV has been repeating the same episodes on a weekly basis. Why do they keep showing the same episodes again and again (sometimes three times a week)?

Navjit Dosanjh, e-mail

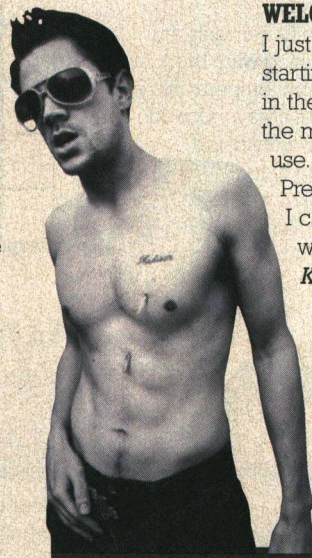

MTV replies: 'We're really glad you like Jackass. The reason why you're seeing so many repeats is because we show one episode per week, which is then repeated over the seven-day period. There have also only been two series of Jackass made so far, so there aren't that many episodes in total. But if they decide to make another series, we'll be sure to show it.'

MUSICAL OMISSIONS

Every week/month I search my TV guides for some musical films, and what do we get? If we're lucky, 10, 15 or maybe 20. Mostly the same old repeats. There must be at least 2000 musicals made between 1927

EDITOR'S NOTE

Can you believe it's December already and 2002 is just around the corner? There's no delaying the inevitable, so for now enjoy the festive season with Cable Guide. There's top-notch family entertainment in Toy Story 2 (pages 6,7), plus a chance to see Steps live in your living room (page 16). Look back on the career of showman Elton John (pages 10,11), and experience Christmas Live (page 9) with UK Style. Don't miss the season's comedy specials (pages 13,14), as well as the hilarious movie Meet the Parents (pages 40,41). Finally, check out Telewest's new look (above), highlighting their broadband services. And have a very happy Christmas.

THE GOOD BAD GIRLS

Thank you to ITV2 for showing the last series of Bad Girls. I only started watching it halfway through this series before, so I was really pleased when it was shown again on ITV2. Will ITV2 be showing the first series, too?

Emma, Wolverhampton

An ITV spokesperson replies: 'There are no plans at present to screen Bad Girls. We recently finished transmitting all episodes from series one to three of the ITV1 drama.'

WELCOME BACK!

I just wanted to say thank you for starting to include the Film Planner in the magazine again. It makes the magazine so much easier to use. If I can't watch a film on Sky Premier or Sky Moviemax, then I can just look it up and see what date it is on next.

A Cartoon Network Christmas

➔ Ho, ho, ho – tis the season to be jolly (tra, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la) on Cartoon Network, so hold the decorations – the tree can wait – as you settle down to a festive TV feast.

Kicking off the holiday season there's Cartoon Theatre, a month-long animated movie megafest, where every weekend at 5.00pm you'll see such films as All Dogs Go to Heaven, The Wind in the Willows, Grandma Got Run Over by a Reindeer and The Flight of Dragons. And don't miss the special Cartoon Theatre Weekend (15th and 16th, 7.00am to midnight).

As the party season gets into full swing, there'll be festive fun with the Cartoon Christmas Party (17th to 23rd), featuring daily Christmas specials at 7.00am. So get ready for Yogi's First Christmas, A Christmas Carol, Tiny Toons: It's a Wonderful Christmas, Frosty's Winter Wonderland and Rudolph's Shiny New Year.

That's not all folks – on the big day there won't be much decking the halls with boughs of holly with Looney Tunes Christmas Marathon. Join Bugs, Daffy, Sylvester, Tweety, Speedy Gonzales and the rest of the gang for yuletide fun from 7.00am. Then, welcome in 2002 with a Tom and Jerry New Year's Day Marathon – 24 hours of non-stop cat and mousing. cg ➔ Tiny and his friends are back in a brand new series of Tiny & Crew, but who's the new member of the crew?

It's Tam – the lovable, life-sized doll! Bubbly Tam has twinkling brown eyes, curly-whirly eyelashes, a cute upturned nose, an unruly mop of brown hair and a smile that lights up her face.

Tammy joins Tiny, the huge yellow Wigasaurus with blue hair, Arabella the frog, daft Dog and those crazy flowers, The Budettes, for fun and games as they play and learn.

'She's such a lovely character,' gushes Clare Goodman, the costume performer who brings Tam to life in this new series, which launches with a special Tiny & Crew Weekend (Saturday 1st and Sunday 2nd, from 7.00am).

'She's just a really happy six-year-old, who has lots of enthusiasm – a bit of a Baby Spice,' continues Clare.

Tiny and the crew love her, too – Tam's the cleverest, funniest doll they've ever met and she loves to sing, and when she does, the flowers – Bud, Flora and Posy – join her for a dance around the garden.

Playing Chee-Chee the chimp in the UK tour of the musical Doctor Dolittle was Clare's first taste of costume performing: 'I actually had to do a workshop with a man who taught me how to move and think like a chimpanzee,' she recalls.

'It's bizarre actually, because you completely become your character, so you do make facial expressions inside the suit.'

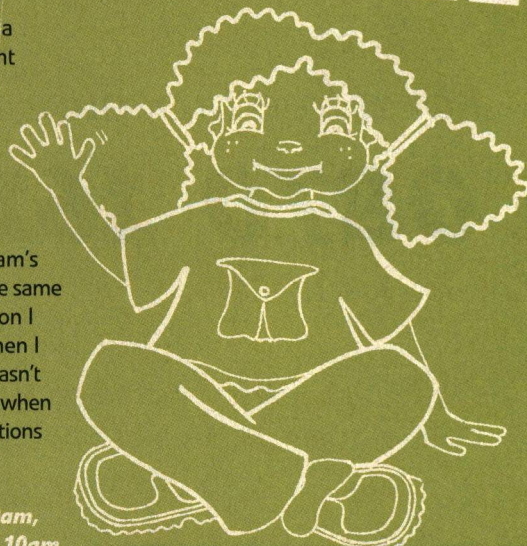

But Clare won't be providing Tam's voice, which will be recorded at the same time as the actions. 'In the audition I did the voice and I found that when I was doing the actions, my voice wasn't sounding exactly as it should, and when I concentrated on the voice, the actions were not as exaggerated.' cg

➡ In the season of goodwill, Trouble is sparing a thought for those less fortunate in Leaving Home, a weekend that centres on young people leaving home and homelessness.

Homeless-themed episodes of Trouble's regular shows will give you an insight. For example, The Parkers will feature the clash between Nikki and Kim, which leaves Kim out on the street trying to find a meal on her own. She meets a homeless woman and they show up at a shelter where Nikki and the gang are serving Thanksgiving dinner. Also, in an episode of The Fresh Prince of Bel Air, Hilary and Carlton both get a lesson in humility after showing up at a homeless shelter. In Hang Time, Nick Hammer meets the girl of his dreams, who happens to live at a shelter. And in a

My So-Called Life episode, Rickie goes missing after being beaten up at home and Angela's (Claire Danes) anxious search for Rickie leads her into a world of runaway kids. There will also be relevant episodes of Two Guys and a Girl and Heartbreak High.

Look out for full-length films too and documentaries, some of which have been produced by Trouble. Working closely with the homeless charity Centrepoint, Trouble's programmes will cover the breakdown of the family, finding accommodation, living on your own, education and benefits, sleeping rough, running away and life in a hostel.

As well as raising awareness, Trouble hopes to raise money for three key charities, so dig deep into that pocket money if you can. cg

Her expedition has met with icy disaster in the Himalayan mountains, on the world's second highest peak – K2.

An international cast playing daredevil climbers, indomitable Sherpas and the Pakistani army, brave avalanches, highly volatile explosives, helicopter mishaps, wowee stunts (under the helm of Martin Campbell, director of The Mask of Zorro and GoldenEye) and high-altitude action, will have you reaching for a hot drink and lap rug. The watchable supporting cast includes Glenn as a grizzled mountain man, Bill Paxton as the foolhardy entrepreneur in charge of the fated team and Bond babe Izabella Scorupco. Note a survival tip for girls: lots of lip gloss improves your odds, evidently.

Fiendish De Niro's agents Natasha Fatale and Boris Badenov attempt to take over the world, but are foiled by animated heroes, flying squirrel Rocky and dim-bulb moose Bullwinkle. Like George Of The Jungle and Dudley Do-Right this wheeze is adapted (with some anarchic comic panache) from Jay Ward's US 1960s TV cartoon comedy.

BILLY ELLIOT
JULIE WALTERS, JAMIE BELL
106 MINS 15

It's 1984 and Billy is the child in a family of striking coal miners. When he strays from the boxing session he hates into a ballet class taught by the indomitable Walters, there's nothing stopping the lad with potential from leaping to the top.

BLAIR WITCH 2
JEFFREY DONOVAN
87 MINS PREMIERE 15

A year after the original film, five young sightseers go down to the notorious woods to have a creepy laugh looking for the Blair Witch and checking out the locations they saw in the movie. Not a good idea, it transpires, since that old black magic is soon at work again. After a boozy, druggy night in the forest the quintet discover they've somehow lost five hours, but their videotape kept running. Back at their guide Jeff's cavernous warehouse to reconstruct the night, solidarity unravels as shocking revelations lead to horror and death.

BOOTMEN
ADAM GARCIA, SAM WORTHINGTON
90 MINS PREMIERE 15

JOHN CUSACK
130 MINS PREMIERE 15

Tim Robbins's drama tells the true story of young Orson Welles's attempt to mount a socialist musical in 1930s New York amid political conspiracy. A fabulous ensemble impersonates the celebrities, decadent socialites and desperate poor to enthralling effect.

DISNEY'S THE KID
BRUCE WILLIS, SPENCER BRESLIN
100 MINS PG

DUETS
GWYNETH PALTROW, HUEY LEWIS
108 MINS PREMIERE 15

Rival pairs of karaoke hustlers converge on a nightclub contest for a cash prize they all need desperately. Everyone sings their socks off most impressively between dramatic confrontations (especially between estranged daughter and father Paltrow and Lewis) and violent action (involving the journey of escaped convict Andre Braugher and runaway salesman Paul Giamatti).

GROOVE
LOLA GLAUDINI, DENNY KIRKWOOD
81 MINS 18

This clubbers' comedy, set in a San Francisco warehouse rave, captures the mood of forgetting the working week to have it large. An innocent out-of-towner enjoys a night of misadventure, chaotic romancing and compulsive dancing. Legendary club DJs as themselves add to the lively mix.

HIGHLANDER - ENDGAME
CHRISTOPHER LAMBERT, ADRIAN PAUL
97 MINS PREMIERE 18

Big screen Immortal Lambert is teamed with 400-year-old TV kinsman Paul (decidedly hunkier and really a Scot) for this fourth adventure of swordplay, martial arts and heavy rock. Connor and Duncan MacLeod unite against dastardly Immortal Jacob (Bruce Payne) and seek long-lived love, disproving the franchise motto 'There can be only one.'

MEMENTO
GUY PEARCE, CARRIE-ANNE MOSS
109 MINS 15

Ex-Neighbours heart-throb Pearce is superb in this intriguingly-told thriller. Leonard (Pearce) has a rare form of amnesia and tracks down his wife's killer by tattooing himself with clues and collecting souvenirs as evidence to tell himself where he is in his investigation.

NURSE BETTY
RENÉE ZELLWEGER, MORGAN FREEMAN,
GREG KINNEAR
106 MINS 18

Betty (the excellent Zellweger) is a waitress and telly addict who suffers a psychological trauma and heads for Los Angeles, believing she is the fiancée of the fictional doctor (Kinnear) in her favourite soap.

NUTTY PROFESSOR II: THE KLUMPS
EDDIE MURPHY, JANET JACKSON
103 MINS 12

Murphy fans get eight Eddies for the price of one in this crazy sequel to the misadventures of roly-poly Professor Sherman Klump. The shy, scientific genius's alter ego, Buddy Love, is on the loose again, vying for Sherman's fiancée.

MEET THE PARENTS
BEN STILLER, ROBERT DE NIRO
104 MINS PREMIERE 12

Nervous Greg Focker (Stiller, demonstrating his usual excellent comic timing) wants to marry his sweet girlfriend (Teri Polo). The final hurdle is to spend the weekend from hell with her parents, particularly her doting, impossible-to-please daddy (De Niro), whose secret past makes him insanely suspicious of our helpless romantic nerd's motives. This sounds like a one-joke movie but the invention is marvellous, Stiller's mishaps with the family cat, the urn containing gran's ashes, and the mad dad all screamingly funny, and his every attempt to ingratiate himself going spectacularly, excruciatingly awry. Gwyneth Paltrow's classy mother Blythe Danner is calmly daft as De Niro's wife and Owen Wilson (Shanghai Noon) is a hoot as the girl's super-cool ex-fiancé.

ME, MYSELF, I

RACHEL GRIFFITHS, DAVID ROBERTS

101 MINS PREMIERE 15

In this comic spin on the Sliding Doors/Family Man idea, an unfulfilled career woman gets run over and comes to in an alternative life where she's the harassed mother of three, married to the man she let get away. Charismatic Griffiths is funny and sympathetic.

119 MINS 15

The Bible tells us God made man on the sixth day of creation, and man (in the shape of mad scientist Duvall and a far-reaching, evil corporate empire) is playing God in this sci-fi thriller, set in a not-too-distant future when cloning animals is common but cloning humans is supposedly outlawed. Family man Arnie (playing a character named Adam, to further the biblical references) comes home to find he's been replaced by a DNA double.

UNBREAKABLE

BRUCE WILLIS, SAMUEL L. JACKSON

103 MINS PREMIERE 12

Bruce Willis re-teams with Sixth Sense writer-director M. Night Shyamalan for another highly original, spooky thriller of suspense and the supernatural – and with his Die Hard with a Vengeance co-star Jackson, in an extraordinary role. One of the most intense actors of his generation is increasingly turning his hand to comedies. But for Hollywood heavyweight Robert De Niro, laughter is a serious business. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

Stiller life

Meet the Parents star Ben Stiller has proved he can convince in brooding dramatic roles, but for now, he's only too happy playing for laughs. Interview: Lawrie Masterson

It's almost as if Ben Stiller is yet to decide what he wants to do when he grows up.

'I'm still trying to find out what my ultimate vocation is in terms of acting, writing, directing and producing,' he says. 'I think the only thing I don't want to do is keep doing the same thing over and over.'

Since his breakthrough role opposite Cameron Diaz in There's Something About Mary (1998), Stiller has put his dramatic talents on display as a drug-addicted screenwriter in Permanent Midnight, based on the memoir of Jerry Stahl, returned to comedy opposite Robert De Niro in Meet the Parents and, most recently, co-wrote, co-produced, directed and starred in Zoolander, which skewers the world of male models.

'It was hard work, but it definitely forces you to take responsibility for what you're doing and I liked that,' he says. 'I love directing.'

He will have another comedy, The Royal Tenenbaums, released before year's end. 'I don't have some need to go and do a very heavy drama right now,' Stiller says. 'I'm not into trying to go, "Everybody, look at me. I'm a serious actor." I don't have any desire to do that.'

Meet the Parents, the 36-year-old says, is a career milestone not just because it grossed millions of dollars around the world, but because it presented the chance to work with the formidable De Niro.

'It was one of those things where, really, I probably would have done the movie at any price, probably any conditions, just because it was this great opportunity to work with Robert De Niro, and I did learn a lot working with him,' Stiller says.

And, even though they were doing comedy, he was afforded glimpses of De Niro's legendary intensity. Their last scene together in the movie takes place in an interrogation room at an airport, where former CIA profiler Jack Byrnes (De Niro) grills his future son-in-law, Greg Focker (Stiller), about his intentions.

'That was really the first time for me feeling the full De Niro weight, having him looking straight through me for a number of hours,' Stiller says. 'That was the closest I got to what it would be like to be in a drama with him or have that energy coming at you all the time.'

You lying to me? Robert De Niro (left) tries to determine if Ben Stiller is trustworthy in hit comedy Meet the Parents

Robert De Niro always has been media shy, and on the rare occasions he does grant interviews he can be not just economical with words, but positively frugal.

No matter what he says or despite what he declines to say, however, there is no doubting that he is one of the most influential actors of his generation. The 58-year-old winner of two Academy Awards has contributed indelible performances to a clutch of memorable films, from his early Bang the Drum Slowly (1973) to The Godfather Part II (1974), Taxi Driver (1976), New York, New York (1977), The Deerhunter (1978), Raging Bull (1980), The King of Comedy (1983) and GoodFellas (1990).

And perhaps it is a practised aloofness, rather than an ingrained fierce desire for privacy, which has allowed De Niro to remain at arm's length from the media all these years.

'He has an odd rhythm that makes him special and it's also what makes him so mysterious and, I think to some people, intimidating because they're not sure how to read him,' says Jay Roach, who directed the hit comedy Meet the Parents.

Describing De Niro as 'a cultural icon', Roach continues: 'He knows how to exploit that and he knows it's funny when people dread meeting him and he consciously or subconsciously turns on challenges as he shifts in his chair in a New York hotel room. 'Imagine sitting here and talking and people asking you personal questions. You'd have the same reaction. I don't think you'd be much different to me.'

In Meet the Parents, De Niro plays Jack Byrnes, a cat-loving former CIA profiler and the intimidating future father-in-law of disaster-prone Greg Focker (played by Ben Stiller).

Nothing is too good for Jack's pretty, first-born daughter Pam (Teri Polo), but if anything can go wrong over a weekend during which Greg intends asking for her hand in marriage, then you can bet it will.

'I sort of fell into comedy,' De Niro says. 'I mean, I've been doing comedies before. King of Comedy is sort of a black comedy; Midnight Run and some other things in my younger days with [director] Brian De Palma. These latest comedies came inadvertently. I didn't look for them.'

Making comedies, he agrees, means putting aside everything he learned as an earnest young student. 'When you're doing comedy you have to,' he says. 'There's a fine line of behaviour. It depends on the character, but you have to find a way of being serious and yet there are funny things about your seriousness.'

'You know, if you're saying a line that maybe

I can only do what I can do, so there are comedies that I wouldn't even go near. They would all go flat the 'Mr De Niro' thing. I don't think he even turns it on. I think it's who he is. I find him hilarious. He makes me laugh when we're between takes.'

De Niro has turned his attention increasingly towards comedy in recent years, scoring major hits with Wag the Dog (1997), Analyze This (1999) and last year's Meet the Parents, but not the unfortunate live action-animation The Adventures of Rocky and Bullwinkle (also 2000). The three most recent of those titles have come from his own company, TriBeCa Productions.

In interview situations, however, he keeps his humorous side hidden, remaining awkward to the point of being overtly uncomfortable.

'Well, you know, you do it,' he can get a laugh but you say it straight, depending on the character, you can have some kind of idiosyncratic behavioural thing that, if it fits, there's an awareness that it's funny.

'But I always feel you have to do it dead straight unless the character is trying to be funny. Like in Analyze This, it's more expressive, the Italian thing. That comes in. It's bigger because that's how they act, those guys.'

'I can only do what I can do, so there are comedies that I wouldn't even go near. They would all go flat. And you have to have a great director.'

'Jay Roach and Harold Ramis [director of Analyze This] are very receptive to certain types of comedy behaviour and if they feel it's not working they'll find a way to tell you without making you feel demoralised.'

'If you are demoralised, then it's over.' cg

Change of heart

Sandra Bullock has won over audiences with her quirky, girl-next-door charm. But 28 Days saw her tackling a more troubled character than her fans were used to. Interview: Garth Pearce

AMERICA'S FILM SWEETHEART,

Sandra Bullock, was ready to deliver a surprise in 28 Days. She plays an alcoholic writer, ordered to spend a month in a rehab clinic after a drink-driving conviction.

She was desperate to play a character far removed from her image. 'Every time something is working well, you feel the pressure of everyone wanting you to stay with the same sort of film,' she says. 'It was time to break the mould and do 28 Days.'

'My character, Gwen, is a wild girl and a refreshing change from anything I've done before. I also loved the fact it was ironically funny. It deals with a serious issue, but has a sense of humour, too.'

Such was 37-year-old Sandra's determination to make sure she got the part right that she sat in on group therapy sessions at a rehab centre. 'I was absolutely petrified. I had no studio exec saying, "This is Sandra. You might have seen her in Speed." The counsellor said, "We

Tate Donovan, and then with heart-throb Matthew McConaughey. Yet, she believes that one day she will find true love. 'Despite everything, I do feel I've been lucky in love,' she says. 'I do not fall in love very often and since high school have had some amazing relationships. Part of me feels that the next time I fall in love it will be for keeps.'

Her down-to-earth approach to life could be influenced by her decision to move away from Los Angeles to the comparative serenity of Austin, Texas. 'I decided that Hollywood was no longer conducive to my good mental health,' she says.

Not only is Sandra now content with her career and love life but she's found that leaving Hollywood has also improved the way she views herself physically.

'In Hollywood, I was surrounded by people who thought that attractive women should be like beanpoles,' she says. 'I have

'Every time something is working well, you feel the pressure of everyone wanting you to stay with the same sort of film'

all know why you're here. There are people who aren't very happy about it.'

But, surely, the actress didn't have any vices of her own to reveal? 'I have plenty of vices,' she says. 'I'm an incredibly optimistic, joyous person, but I can also be afraid and insecure.'

Sandra has never fallen for the worst excesses of Hollywood – drink, drug abuse and, in some cases, jail – despite a high-profile career with huge hits, Speed and While You Were Sleeping. Her career may have also suffered box-office setbacks, like Speed 2: Cruise Control, but, throughout, she has remained positive.

'There is more to life than being judged as a person on the box-office success or failure of a movie,' she says. 'I want to live, enjoy my freedom and find love.'

Sandra has seen two long-running relationships crash – first with fiancé actor a small top and a big ass and have always felt the pressure to conform to the ideal. The feeling of suddenly not caring was like a weight lifted from me.'

But she believes the best is yet to come. 'I hope to peak when I'm 50 or 60. I feel really sexy right now because I am feeling good on the inside,' she says. 'I have always read that certain women hit a sexual peak in their thirties. The next man that gets a hold of me is in for the time of his life!' cq

Johnny be good

Johnny Depp may be more family man than bad boy these days, but, as he tells Lawrie Masterson, he's still attracted to eccentric outsider roles

JOHNNY DEPP PULLS OFF his trademark woolly cap and, in an earnest attempt to disperse a cloud of cigarette smoke, uses it briefly as a fan.

'It's one of the only things I'm good at, so I have to continue,' he says of a habit on the verge of being banned outright in health-conscious Los Angeles and certainly a no-no inside the trendy Standard Hotel on Sunset Boulevard, where Depp is standing as he speaks.

'I can't give it up right now. I'd have a nervous breakdown before your eyes.'

And because he is Johnny Depp, no one from the hotel moves a muscle – LA treats its celebrities far more seriously than its anti-smoking ordinances.

Cigarettes and alcohol taken in moderation – preferably red wine from France, where he now lives with girlfriend Vanessa Paradis and daughter Lily-Rose – are the limits of the 38-year-old actor's indulgences these days.

He is a far cry from the younger, wilder Depp, who once trashed a suite in an exclusive hotel. Now he is more likely to give you a five-minute dissertation on the joys of living with Paradis, the 29-year-old French singer and actress to whom he refers as 'my girl', and two-year-old Lily-Rose.

'I don't believe I had anything solid to live for until I met Vanessa and until I met my daughter,' he says at the slightest prompting. 'Vanessa has been kind of a miracle, really. We're together now more than three years and I feel as though I've met the one that you think about searching the world over for – the right one, the real one.'

'And more than us giving birth to our little girl, I think she gave birth to us. I think she chose to come to us.' Depp pauses a moment, runs a hand through his long hair and smiles sheepishly. 'I am such a sap,' he says. 'Such a sap.'

While fatherhood undoubtedly has mellowed him, the rebel still lives within Johnny Depp – especially when it comes to eclectic career choices. He is fascinated by outcasts.

'It probably goes back to when I was a little kid in elementary school and my family moved around a lot,' he says. 'I remember coming from Kentucky to Florida and my first days of school were just torment. I mean, it was just awful because I was outside, I was not accepted, and it was very painful.'

During the past two years Depp has played two gypsies (The Man Who Cried and Chocolat), a cocaine trafficker (Blow) and an opium-smoking London detective in pursuit of Jack the Ripper (From Hell).

Now, the outsiders he inhabits are antidotes, perhaps, to a personal life which, by all accounts, is blissfully happy. He met the waif-like Paradis in 1998 when he was in Paris making the supernatural thriller The Ninth Gate for another outsider, controversial director Roman Polanski. Basically, he hasn't made it home yet, having settled in a village near the millionaires' playground of St Tropez in the South.

'Do I think I'll stay in France for the rest of my life?' he repeats. 'At the moment I do, honestly. It's such an amazing place. Paris is a great metropolis, a huge city, but when you get out into the small villages, the warmth of the people is incomparable. And once you've spent a couple of years drinking French wine, it's kind of difficult to go to the Napa Valley, let's be honest.'

In The Ninth Gate, Depp plays Dean Corso, a corruptible New Yorker who specialises in tracking down rare and exotic books for wealthy collectors. When a publisher acquires a 16th-century text, he hires Corso to track down the other two copies of the book known to exist. They are illustrated with nine engravings that, when properly interpreted and combined with the original text, are said to summon Satan.

'I think within the first three minutes of any Roman Polanski film you feel some kind of uneasiness, a sense of instability at the centre of your body,' Depp says. 'He is the king of that.'

'Within the first three minutes of any Polanski film you feel some kind of uneasiness'

From intelligent, Oscar-winning roles to prominent London MP, Glenda Jackson is one of Britain's great leading ladies

Drama queen

SINCE THE DEMISE OF the Labour MP Andrew Faulds, who was the BBC radio space hero Jet Morgan in the 1950s and a grinning presence in films like The Trollenberg Terror and Blood of the Vampire, the most distinguished actor in the House of Commons – not counting all those folk who manage to use the expression ‘the honourable member for somewhere’ – is the Labour Member for Hampstead and Highgate.

Glenda Jackson had an outside shot at being a London Mayoral candidate but showed sense enough to duck out of that unholy mess early on, and has tended to play down the grandstanding and stick to unglamorous good works like public transport. America, it should be remembered, resorts to has-beens (Ronald Reagan, Sonny Bono, George Jessell) when it elects showbiz candidates; Jackson, a double Best Actress Oscar-winner – for heavyweight work in Women in Love and the deceptively lighter A Touch of Class – was still getting offers in 1992, when she wound down the acting and stood for election.

Class act: Glenda Jackson has made the transition from roles in films, such as the 1971 John Schlesinger-directed Sunday Bloody Sunday, above, to appearing in Parliament

Born in Birkenhead in 1936, she worked behind a counter at Boots in Leeds, went through RADA and became an electric stage presence with the Royal Shakespeare Company in the early 1960s. Her first film – a bit part in This Sporting Life – suggested that with her natural accent and woman-down-the-road looks she'd have a career in the then-burgeoning 'kitchen sink' school of British cinema realism. But the Oxbridge directors who turned out those 'grim oop North' dramas preferred to cast dolly birds like Shirley Anne Field and Julie Christie in the leading roles (it got so depressing looking at all those slagheaps so you had to give the punters some eye-candy). Stage-wise, Jackson had tended to go for bigger, more dramatic stuff and, thanks to Ken Russell, a typical Jackson film role tended to feature a mad scene or nudity.

She first worked with Russell on Women in Love, writhing between Alan Bates and Oliver Reed, played the nymphomaniac in The Music Lovers, but drew the line at the hunchbacked nun in The Devils, turning down the role Vanessa Redgrave eagerly snapped up. The furious Russell forgave her in the 1980s, casting her in Salome's Last Dance and as the mother of her Women in Love character in The Rainbow. She was Elizabeth I on television, and starred opposite Redgrave in Mary Queen of Scots, but a guest appearance as Cleopatra on the Morecambe and Wise Show won her a comedy lead in A Touch of Class, which was successful enough to warrant a few mild follow-ups (House Calls, Lost and Found). For a while, she got eccentric leads in underwhelming films: as Lady Hamilton, Hedda Gabler, Sarah Bernhardt and Stevie Smith.

Notionally to the right of the famously left wing Vanessa Redgrave, Jackson rarely took 'frivolous' engagements like the Redgrave role in Mission: Impossible. When leading lady parts dried up, she plumped for committed, gutsy, slightly hectoring work in Giro City, Sakharov, Turtle Diary or Business as Usual – films much more interested in editorialising than anything else, and was thus fated to go unwatched. Then, politics called. If, in her mid-sixties, she was still acting, she might be playing a tough-but-caring prison governess/hospital administrator/chief constable on television. Or, assuming Judi Dench was a John Major appointee, Jackson might be Tony Blair's choice for M. cg

PICK OF THE DAY

Xena: Warrior Princess

Sky One 1.00pm

It may shamelessly pick and mix from mythology, but all-action heroine Xena, played by Lucy Lawless, has proved a ratings winner since she made her debut in her own spin-off from Hercules: The Legendary Journeys. After six series, it's time to bid farewell in this final two-part special. For her last quest, the makers turn to Japanese samurai warrior legend. Learning of a period of her history she'd rather forget, Xena sets sail to Japan to confront an evil samurai ghost-capable of enslaving souls.

Proving that the addition of comedy to quiz shows is still a great way of redeeming a tired old format, here's a new one hosted by Claudia Winkleman, in which The Fast Show's Rhys Thomas and David Mitchell of Mitchell and Webb are the caustic resident team captains. Die-hard Britney, Madonna and Big Brother fans battle it out, even dressing up as their favourite stars. But even if they know the subject of their obsession inside out, will they be able to answer other questions on the world of show business?

PICK OF THE DAY

Meet the Parents

Robert De Niro, Ben Stiller, Teri Polo, Blythe Danner
De Niro plays the father-in-law from hell in this hit romantic comedy. When male Jewish nurse Greg Focker (Stiller) proposes to Pamela Byrnes (Polo), little does he realise what he's getting himself into. Not only is Greg deemed unsuitable, but Pam's WASPish father, ex-CIA agent Jack (De Niro), is so overprotective that Greg must submit to such trials as a lie detector test. His ensuing nervousness leads to all manner of slapstick comedy.

Cuba Gooding Jr, Skeet Ulrich, Peter Firth With chemical weapons alarmingly brought to the fore recently, here's an action thriller which will tap into current paranoia. When an army officer (Firth) is wrongly imprisoned for a scientific experiment gone wrong, he determines to steal the weapon on his release and wreak his revenge. It's up to a diner worker (Ulrich) and an ice cream truck driver (Gooding Jr), who accidentally become involved, to keep the chemical bomb cool to prevent it detonating.

PICK OF THE DAY

The Adventures of Rocky and Bullwinkle

Robert De Niro, Rene Russo, Jason Alexander
With their cartoon heyday over, Rocky and Bullwinkle have been languishing in rerun hell. But the FBI pulls them out of obscurity when their old nemesis, Fearless Leader, escapes the cartoon world and takes the form of a world-domination-obsessed media mogul (De Niro). The mix of live action and computer animation is a far cry from the famously unsophisticated source material, but there are still gags aplenty and a few star cameos.

PICK OF THE DAY

Banzai Christmas Special E4 10.00pm

Fans of the anarchic Japanese gambling show Banzai are in for a treat with this festive episode. The usual crazy Japanese presenters will be on hand to introduce such bizarre bets as 'Cheeky Chappy's rude Christmas light conundrum' – Mr Cheeky Chappy has arranged the lights in such a way that, when lit, they spell out a rude word – or the 'walking-on-the-air balloon lift gamble' with Aled Jones, in which we have to guess how many helium filled balloons will it take to lift the angelic choir boy of yesteryear off the ground.

For Chelsea's flaxen-maned midfielder Emmanuel Petit, 'tis the season to pick up important points – starting with the match against his old club, Arsenal. Interview: Luke Nicoli

THE YULETIDE PERIOD IS traditionally felt to be the time when those teams harbouring championship ambitions must forcibly stake their claim on the league. With the holiday's flurry of games and the many points at stake, we invariably welcome in the New Year with a pretty good idea of the three or four teams expected to challenge for the major prize.

Following their outlay of more than £30m on new players, Chelsea are expected to join the elite few – yet an unenviable fixture list dictates that the next few weeks or so will be a critical period for Claudio Ranieri's side.

Unbeaten during the first two months of the campaign, the club are just off the pace and their credentials will be further put to the test with trips to Manchester United, Sunderland, Arsenal and Newcastle this month. Add to the equation the visit of Liverpool and early season pace-setters Bolton, and you get an idea of the tough task facing the side.

But for French midfielder Emmanuel Petit, there's a sense of déjà vu. His inaugural season with Arsenal saw the club in a similar position, yet from Christmas onwards, the north London side went on an emphatic unbeaten run that saw them claim the 1997-98 League and Cup double. So, far from pressing the panic buttons, he knows exactly what will be needed during the coming weeks and months.

'That was an incredible season for Arsenal,' he recalls with a smile. 'Everything started to come together at Christmas and the spirit we created was unbeatable. A number of wins in a short space of time gave us that confidence. But England is like no other country at this time of year. Usually I would be spending time with my family, but here we are playing more games than ever, and it is so important to pick up as many points as possible. With the players at the club, we would consider ourselves challengers for the title and we know how important it is to stay in touch with the top sides at this time.'

Of all the games on the packed festive fixture list, Petit is obviously looking forward to renewing rivalries with his former club. The meeting between the sides at Stamford Bridge earlier in the season ended in an ill-tempered 1-1 draw, which saw Chelsea striker Jimmy Floyd Hasselbaink sent off following a clash with Martin Keown. Gunners midfielder Patrick Vieira was also conspicuous by his absence, owing to another enforced suspension, but Petit is looking forward to locking horns with his great pal this time round. Naturally, he has the ultimate respect for his French international comrade and admits it will be strange to be facing him as an opponent.

'It will be difficult to play against Patrick because he is a very good player and a very good friend,' he admits. 'We have had so many good moments together with Arsenal and France, but we have to forget all that when the game starts.'

'The last time we faced each other was when I'd just joined Barcelona and we played Arsenal in a tournament in Amsterdam. We just ended up laughing and joking, but I know it will be different this time. I'm sure it will be a special occasion, playing against my former team-mates again. It will be another emotional day, but I'm looking forward to going back.'

Petit, naturally, sees Arsenal as creditable title challengers - 'They have a very strong team,' is his take on Arsène Wenger's current set-up. But he is far more concerned with the exploits of his own team. With the arrival of fellow midfielder Frank Lampard, former Barcelona team-mate Boudewijn Zenden and centre-half William Gallas, allied with the high-profile departures of Dennis Wise and Frank Leboeuf, there has been considerable change at Chelsea, but Petit believes they have already made rapid strides.

'This is a new team in many respects, so we are delighted with our current position,' he points out. 'In midfield I am still getting to learn Frank Lampard's game and he can say the same of me. He is a very good player but it will take time for us to gel - that is only natural. But it is up to me to take a lead role and help not just Frank, but all the team. The manager wants a leader in every department: Marcel Desailly in defence, me in midfield and Jimmy Floyd Hasselbaink in attack. There is certainly more to come from this team and that is what drives me on. It is a very good set-up we have at Chelsea.'

Yet the Chelsea board, and, indeed, the fans, will want to see some return on their investment. It is now 46 years since the Blues last lifted the top-flight championship trophy and Petit is aware the wait will not go on forever.

'When I looked at the records,' he says, 'I couldn't believe it has been so long since Chelsea won the championship. I've only known them as a successful side, and we have to build on that momentum now. In our advantage, I think the race this season will be more open than in the last few years. We've had Manchester United winning, with Arsenal on their tails, but there are more teams with realistic ambitions now.'

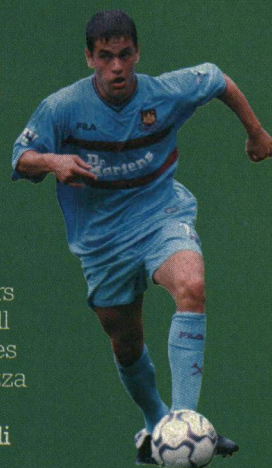

'We have a big opportunity to fight for the title not just this season but in seasons to come. Chelsea have always had the ability, but maybe it's the consistency that has been lacking. We're all trying so hard to put that right and I think we are showing the right signs.'

'The thing in England is to give everything for the team and it's something the foreign players in particular are learning very quickly.'

ON THE SPOT

West Ham prodigy Joe Cole has been described as one of the most gifted players of his generation - all those school playtimes pretending to be Gazza obviously paid off.
Interview: Luke Nicoli

What's the most memorable match you've played in and why?

Most definitely last season's FA Cup victory against Manchester United. We don't have the best of records at Old Trafford, so to go up there and take the game to them was a fantastic achievement for us. When Paolo ran in on goal, it seemed to take forever, but to see the ball hit the back of the net will live with me for a long, long, time. I thought the ref might have called for offside when Barthez started appealing, but when he gave it, I went mad. Our fans totally took over that day and it's just a shame we didn't progress further in the competition for them.

Who's your footballing hero and why?

It's always been Gazza. I just remember being mesmerised by him at Italia 90. I've never known a midfielder in this country to have so much skill and match it with goals as well. I used to pretend to be him in the playground and it's been a real honour to be compared to him now. He has always played the game with a smile on his face and that's the way it should be; football is sometimes too serious these days.

Which team do you support and why?

Believe it or not, I was a Chelsea fan as a kid. They were a yo-yo club in those days and the stadium was not a patch on what we see at Stamford Bridge today. I used to like seeing Vinnie Jones in the midfield, geeing the lads up and kicking people. He used to get a lot of stick for some of his antics, but Vinnie was underrated as a footballer. You don't play for as long as he did in the Premier League without having something special.

What's the best piece of footballing advice you've been given?

Be it from my family or the coaches who have worked with me at West Ham, I'm always told to keep my feet on the ground and continue to work hard. I've had pressure on me since I was a young boy, people saying this and that about my ability, but I've never read the headlines. I've just concentrated on being the best player I possibly can and that's meant hard work on the training ground. Of course, you have to have natural ability, but it's all about discipline too.

You've been injured for much of this season, so how does it feel to be back?

I suffered a foot injury during the pre-season but tried to carry on, which might have done the injury more harm. It is a massive hindrance for a player like me, and I've been like a bear with a sore head round the house. I'm getting much better than when I was younger, because when I used to get injured I was terrible. But I am now much stronger mentally to deal with these things. I just want to get out there now and help the team climb the table.

SKI'S THE LIMIT

Alain Baxter is fast emerging as Britain's best hope of success on the ski slopes, and, he tells Simon Johnson, his sights are firmly set on a medal position

WHEN IT COMES TO THE Winter Olympics, it is fair to say that Britain is not a nation that expects much from its representatives, especially on the ski slopes. Britain has yet to win an alpine ski medal since the Winter Olympics began in 1924 and can only boast the likes of glorified loser Eddie 'The Eagle' Edwards among its stars.

But, this month, slalom skier Alain Baxter will give British Eurosport viewers an early indication of whether he is the man to end the barren run when he competes at the Kranjska Gora World Cup event in Slovenia. It is the third race of nine in a competition that determines who is the best slalom skier in the world and where competitors finish in the overall rankings.

Baxter has made a meteoric rise in the last 12 months, rising to an impressive 11th position in the final standings last season. But the Scot insists he is not satisfied and has set his sights on finishing in the top three at Kranjska Gora before he heads to Salt Lake City to challenge for an Olympic medal in February next year.

Baxter says, 'Last year was pretty unbelievable and I know by that form I can go on to get a podium finish. If I do that I will be happy. Training went very well for me before the season started and if everything goes to plan it shouldn't be a problem.'

'But there is a lot of work to do before the Olympics. A lot depends on how well you do in the World Cup as to what will happen in the Olympics.'

'It is a one-off race and a once-in-a-lifetime thing, but if I can ski to my potential I know I can win a medal.'

'Just knowing I am in with a chance is very exciting. At the last Olympics in Japan I started number 45 in the race, which makes finishing in the top 20 the best you can hope for.'

'But because I am ranked 11th after last season I will be starting in the top 15, so I stand a great chance because I will be getting the best of the conditions. I am an opponent to be feared and can win it.' But Baxter admits he finds himself under a great deal more pressure having raised expectations with last season's performances, where he finished every World Cup race in the points.

He adds, 'A rise up the rankings as fast as mine happens a lot, but I took it a lot further by getting to 11th in the world.'

'I had been Britain's best for a number of years, but suddenly I have been getting a lot of attention.'

'I was never in it for the money or the fame, it is just a sport I have done since a very young age.'

'This is the first time I will be starting from such a high expectancy level and there is pressure for me to get even better and there is a thought in my mind on whether I can do it again.'

This season, Baxter, who turns 28 on Boxing Day, has the quandary of whether he would prefer a climb in the rankings via the World Cup or to succeed at the Olympics. But one gets the impression he wants to make history in America.

'The Olympics is a really special race and not many people get a chance of competing in them. The World Cup is like motor racing, where you pick up points throughout the season to finish top and are then seen as the best.'

'But it has been known that guys have won World Cups, but never an Olympic medal. You can go in as favourite and finish 10th. Whatever happens, it is going to be an exciting year for me.' And for Britain, which may finally be remembered for the success of Baxter rather than the gallant failure of Edwards.

FULHAM V LEEDS UTD

(Pay per view)

Sunday 2nd 1.30pm
Jean Tigana's Fulham may have blitzed Division One last year, but the Premiership is proving to be a tougher nut to crack. Too many early season draws failed to provide the Craven Cottage team with a Bolton-style fast start. Men like last season's rampant goal scorer Louis Saha (pictured) need to find their touch against a Leeds United team that is showing all the hallmarks of potential champions. The Yorkshire side now has a pool of top internationals to rival any club in the League and will fancy another three points this afternoon.

INDIA V ENGLAND

Sky Sports 2

From Sunday 2nd, 4.00am

The original on-off nature of this tour will guarantee extra interest that is bound to put pressure on both teams, especially Nasser Hussain's (above) England. The safety of both sides will be paramount in this first of the three-match Test Series starting today in Mohali. England have picked the most difficult time ever to build on last winter's successes in Pakistan and Sri Lanka.

DARTS WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

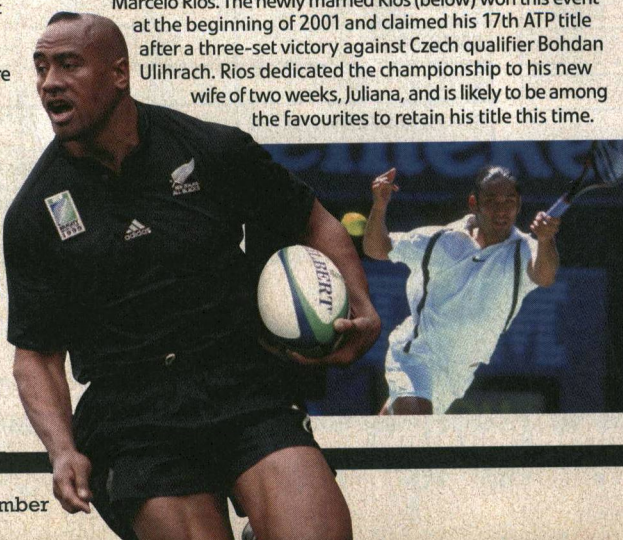

Sky Sports 2

From Friday 28th, 1.00pm
Darts has regained much of its 1980s popularity in recent years thanks to highly skilled performances from men such as World Champion Phil 'The Power' Taylor (above), whose eight world titles in 11 years even won him an MBE in the last New Year's Honours list. All the action comes from the Circus Tavern, Purfleet, Surrey and the usual band of mic men will explain the darting delights to both regular fans and the uninitiated – the working man's walking thesaurus Sid Waddell and Cockney ex-world champ Eric Bristow.

ARGENTINA V NEW ZEALAND

Sky Sports 2

Saturday 1st, 11.00pm
The All Blacks might not be all-conquering on the world stage of rugby union any more, but there are few more watchable teams. This Test Match in Buenos Aires against Argentina will mean a tough start for new All Blacks coach John Mitchell, as the Pumas are never better than in front of their home crowd. Mitchell will probably look for regular stars like Jonah Lomu (right) to start his NZ coaching career with a win.

ATP TOURNAMENT IN QATAR

British Eurosport Monday 31st, 1.30pm

The opening event in the ATP Champions Race for 2002, at Dohar, Qatar, will bring back happy memories for Chilean star Marcelo Rios. The newly married Rios (below) won this event at the beginning of 2001 and claimed his 17th ATP title after a three-set victory against Czech qualifier Bohdan Ulihrach. Rios dedicated the championship to his new wife of two weeks, Juliana, and is likely to be among the favourites to retain his title this time.

ALAN CURBISHLEY

Many clubs find themselves under new management this season – it seems that it only takes a few dodgy results for the gaffer to be given his P45. Illustration: Chris Hogg

THERE HAVE BEEN A LOT OF managerial casualties already this season. This is down to the fact that there is so much financial pressure put on Premiership football clubs; if a club loses its Premiership status it could then lose up to 70 per cent of its income. The financial gap between the Premier League and the First Division is so great these days that the consequences for a club relegated from the Premiership could be catastrophic.

But 10 years ago, the idea of sacking a manager to give a team a bit of a lift was unheard of. When a new manager joins a club, it's going to give the players a boost, there's no doubt about that – but the question is, for how long? A few years ago we had 52 managers sacked in one year, and it wouldn't surprise me if we came close to that figure this year.

I'm a member of the League Managers Association and we've been giving a lot of consideration to this managerial merry-go-round. Firstly, we're all disturbed by the fact that there have been so many upheavals, because this undermines the stability of the affected football clubs. Having said that, we're all aware of the nature of the game; you can't stop club chairmen making these decisions, we're just concerned they're made for the right reasons and that the chairmen act correctly afterwards. For instance, there have been a number of occasions when a manager has been sacked and a successor is already in place before his compensation has been agreed.

Also, there do not seem to be any new managers coming through. It used to be the case that if you proved yourself as a manager in the old Fourth Division, you moved up to the Third, and if you did well there you'd move up into the Second, and so on, until, if you were lucky, you eventually reached the First Division. But usually the only way a new manager will get into the Premiership is if his team has been promoted. That's why the same old names are always mentioned if there is a vacancy at a Premiership club. And this gives cause for concern about where the next generation of managers is going to come from.

It seems to be the case that a lot of managers are being fast-tracked into the game, and everything is being ploughed into the short-term situation. Although that can work: David O'Leary has been fabulously successful without having had a wealth of experience. But I've been at Charlton for 10 years and I believe that I'm still learning.

There has been a lot of talk about football managers always being under pressure. If I look back to when I took over at Charlton as joint manager with Steve Gritt, when we had no ground, no players and no money – that was pressure. Likewise, only five years ago, our captain, Mark Kinsella, was tearing up the motorway to play for his previous club, Colchester, not knowing if he was going to get paid. That's what you call pressure.

But the real stress hits managers off the field and comes from being constantly in the public eye. A plumber could put in a poor central heating system and who's going to know? But if your team has a bad result, the fans certainly know about it, millions will see the game on television and millions more will read the report in the papers.

Everyone has an opinion on football, no matter where you go, and you can't escape it. You'll try to have a quiet drink and you'll come across someone who follows another team, or somebody who supports yours and thinks they know best. But it's difficult to get away from it. I often spend entire days off on the phone talking to our chairman or other managers, then I'll sit down to relax in front of the TV in the evening to find that there are three matches on!

It seems something comes along every year that changes the game and makes it even more difficult to be a football manager – we've had clubs keeping all their home receipts; the Bosman ruling; the increased power that players' agents have; and now we have new transfer rules coming in and the threat of a players' strike. In five years time, I'll probably be talking like an old-timer, because the game will be totally unrecognisable. CG
